Howard College Radiologic Technology Program Receives Accreditation

SAN ANGELO – The Joint Review Committee on Education in Radiologic Technology (JRCERT) has awarded initial accreditation to Howard College's associate degree in Radiologic Technology for a period of three years, the maximum duration that may be awarded in this category. This accreditation offers significant value by providing peer evaluation and assuring the public of quality education in the radiologic sciences.

Under the guidance of the program director Kirk Peterson BSRT, MA, the program began the fall semester of 2006. May 2008 was the first graduating class for this new program.

The Radiologic Technology program is one of many programs offered by Howard College as a direct result of community input and support. There was a need in our community for persons to possess the job-ready skills and education in this field to fill available jobs.
